

GRADE 8

SOCIAL STUDIES STANDARDS

8th Grade Social Studies Skills

In Grades 7 and 8, students will examine the United States and New York State through a historical lens. The two-year sequence is arranged chronologically, beginning with the settlement of North America by Native Americans* and ending with an examination of the United States in the 21st century. Although the courses emphasize the skill of chronological reasoning and causation, the courses also integrate the skills and content from geography, politics, economy, and culture into the study of history. Teachers are encouraged to incorporate local features of state history in the course, such as the Dutch in the Hudson Valley, the Germans in the Schoharie Valley, the French in the Champlain Valley, Fort Niagara, the Brooklyn Naval Yard, the Seneca Falls Convention, Underground Railroad locations, war memorials, and other features in their community.

A. Gathering, Interpreting and Using Evidence

- Define and frame questions about the United States and answer them by gathering, interpreting, and using evidence.
- Identify, describe, and evaluate evidence about events from diverse sources (including written documents, works of art, photographs, charts and graphs, artifacts, oral traditions, and other primary and secondary sources).
- Analyze evidence in terms of historical and/or social context, content, authorship, point of view, purpose, and format; identify bias; explain the role of bias, context and audience in presenting arguments or evidence.
- Describe and analyze arguments of others, considering historical context.
- Make inferences and draw conclusions from evidence.
- Recognize an argument and identify evidence that supports the argument; examine arguments related to a specific social studies topic from multiple perspectives; deconstruct arguments, recognizing the perspective of the argument and identifying evidence used to support that perspective.

B. Chronological Reasoning

- Articulate how events are related chronologically to one another in time, and explain the ways in which earlier ideas and events may influence subsequent ideas and events.
- Employ mathematical skills to measure time by years, decades, centuries, and millennia; to calculate time from the fixed points of the calendar system (B.C. or B.C.E. and A.D. or C.E.); and to interpret the data presented in timelines.
- Identify causes and effects, using examples from current events, grade-level content, and historical events.
- Identify, analyze, and evaluate the relationship between multiple causes and effects.
- Distinguish between long-term and immediate causes and effects of an event from current events or history.

- Recognize, analyze, and evaluate dynamics of historical continuity and change over periods of time.
- Recognize that changing the periodization affects the historical narrative.
- Relate patterns of continuity and change to larger historical processes and themes.
- Identify and describe models of historical periodization that historians use to categorize events.

C. Comparison and Contextualization

- Identify a region of the United States by describing multiple characteristics common to places within it, and then identify other similar regions inside the United States.
- Identify and compare multiple perspectives on a given historical experience.
- Describe, compare, and evaluate multiple historical developments (within societies; across and between societies; in various chronological and geographical contexts).
- Describe the relationship between geography, economics, and history as a context for events and movements in the United States.
- Connect historical developments to specific circumstances of time and place and to broader regional, national, or global processes.
- Analyze case studies in United States history in a comparative framework, attending to the role of chronology and sequence, as well as categories of comparison or socio-political components.

D. Geographic Reasoning

- Use location terms and geographic representations, such as maps, photographs, satellite images, and models to describe where places are in relation to each other and connections between places; evaluate the benefits of particular places for purposeful activities.
- Distinguish human activities and human-made features from “environments” (natural events or physical features—land, air, and water—that are not directly made by humans) and describe the relationship between human activities and the environment.
- Identify and analyze how environments affect human activities and how human activities affect physical environments in the United States.
- Recognize and analyze how characteristics (cultural, economic, and physical-environmental) of regions affect the history of the United States.
- Characterize and analyze changing interconnections between places and regions.
- Describe the spatial organization of place, considering the historical, social, political, and economic implication of that organization. Identify and describe examples of how boundaries and definition of location are historically constructed.

E. Economics and Economic Systems

- Explain how economic decisions affect the well-being of individuals, businesses, and society; evaluate alternative approaches or solutions to economic issues in terms of benefits and costs for different groups of people.
- Explain the roles of buyers and sellers in product, labor, and financial markets.
- Describe the role of competition in the determination of prices and wages in a market economy.

- Examine the roles of institutions such as corporations, non-profit organizations, and labor unions in a market economy in the United States.
- Use appropriate data to evaluate the state of employment, unemployment, inflation, total production, income, and economic growth in the economy.
- Explain how government policies affect the economy.

F. Civic Participation

- Demonstrate respect for the rights of others in discussions and classroom debates; respectfully disagree with other viewpoints. Use techniques and strategies to be an active and engaged member of class discussions of fellow classmates' views and statements.
- Participate in activities that focus on a classroom, school, community, state, or national issue or problem.
- Identify and explain different types of political systems and ideologies used at various times in United States history and explain the roles of individuals and key groups in those political and social systems.
- Identify, describe, and contrast the role of the individual in opportunities for social and political participation as an agent of historical change in different societies and communities, as well as at different times, in the United States.
- Participate in persuading, negotiating, and compromising in the resolution of conflicts and differences; introduce and examine the elements of debate.
- Identify situations in which social actions are required and determine an appropriate course of action.
- Work to influence those in positions of power to strive for extensions of freedom, social justice, and human rights.
- Fulfill social and political responsibilities associated with citizenship in a democratic society.
- Develop the connections of an interdependent global community by engaging in the political process as it relates to a global context.

Grade 8 History of the United States and New York State II

Grade 8 Social Studies is arranged chronologically, beginning with Reconstruction and ending at the present, and incorporates geography as well as economic, social and political trends. The course content is divided into nine Key Ideas; the first seven trace the human experience in the United States from Reconstruction to the end of World War II. The last three Key Ideas examine different themes in United States and New York State history from the post-War period up to the present day, which provides the opportunity to explore contemporary issues. Teachers should note that some Key Ideas and concepts may require extra time or attention. In the grade 8 course, these include the Key Ideas 8.2 A Changing Society, 8.4 World War I and the Roaring 20s, 8.7 Foreign Policy, and 8.8 Demographic Change.

8.1 Reconstruction

Regional tensions following the Civil War complicated efforts to heal the nation and to redefine the status of African Americans.

- 8.1a Different approaches toward and policies for Reconstruction highlight the challenges faced in reunifying the nation.
- 8.1b Freed African Americans created new lives for themselves in the absence of slavery. Constitutional amendments and federal legislation sought to expand the rights and protect the citizenship of African Americans.
- 8.1c Federal initiatives begun during Reconstruction were challenged on many levels, leading to negative impacts on the lives of African Americans.

8.2 A Changing Society

Industrialization and immigration contributed to the urbanization of America. Problems resulting from these changes sparked the Progressive movement and increased calls for reform.

- 8.2a Technological developments changed the modes of production, and access to natural resources facilitated increased industrialization. The demand for labor in urban industrial areas resulted in increased migration from rural areas and a rapid increase in immigration to the United States. New York City became the nation's largest city, and other cities in New York State also experienced growth at this time.
- 8.2b Population density, diversity, technologies, and industry in urban areas shaped the social, cultural, and economic lives of people.
- 8.2c Increased urbanization and industrialization contributed to increasing conflicts over immigration, influenced changes in labor conditions, and led to political corruption.
- 8.2d In response to shifts in working conditions, laborers organized and employed a variety of strategies in an attempt to improve their conditions.
- 8.2e Progressive reformers sought to address political and social issues at the local, state, and federal levels of government between 1890 and 1920. These efforts brought renewed attention to women's rights and the suffrage movement and spurred the creation of government reform policies.

8.3 Expansion and Imperialism

Beginning in the second half of the 19th century, economic, political, and cultural factors contributed to a push for westward expansion and more aggressive United States foreign policy.

- 8.3a Continued westward expansion contributed to increased conflicts with Native Americans.
- 8.3b The Spanish-American War contributed to the rise of the United States as an imperial power.
- 8.3c Interest in Pacific trade contributed to an increase in United States foreign interactions.
- 8.3d The Roosevelt Corollary expanded the Monroe Doctrine and increased United States involvement in the affairs of Latin America. This led to resentment of the United States among many in Latin America.

8.4 World War I and the Roaring Twenties

Various diplomatic, economic, and ideological factors contributed to the United States decision to enter World War I. Involvement in the war significantly altered the lives of Americans. Postwar America was characterized by economic prosperity, technological innovations, and changes in the workplace.

- 8.4a European militarism, the alliance system, imperialism, and nationalism were all factors that contributed to the start of World War I.
- 8.4b International, economic, and military developments swayed opinion in favor of the United States siding with the Allies and entering World War I. Domestic responses to World War I limited civil liberties within the United States.
- 8.4c New military technologies changed military strategy in World War I and resulted in an unprecedented number of casualties.
- 8.4d Following extensive political debate, the United States refused to ratify the Treaty of Versailles. The United States then sought to return to pre-war policies by focusing on domestic rather than international matters.
- 8.4e After World War I, the United States entered a period of economic prosperity and cultural change. This period is known as the Roaring Twenties. During this time, new opportunities for women were gained, and African Americans engaged in various efforts to distinguish themselves and celebrate their culture.

8.5 Great Depression

Economic and environmental disasters in the 1930s created hardships for many Americans. Amidst much debate about the appropriate role of government, President Franklin D. Roosevelt helped to create intensive government interventions in the United States economy and society.

- 8.5a Risky investing, protectionism, and overproduction led to the collapse of the stock market, a wave of bank failures, and a long and severe downturn in the economy called the Great Depression.
- 8.5b The Great Depression and the Dust Bowl affected American businesses and families.
- 8.5c President Roosevelt issued the New Deal in an attempt to revive the economy and help Americans deal with the hardships of the Great Depression. These New Deal reforms had a long-lasting effect on the role of government in American society and its economic life, but did not resolve all of the hardships Americans faced.

8.6 World War II

The aggression of the Axis powers threatened United States security and led to its entry into World War II. The nature and consequences of warfare during World War II transformed the United States and the global community. The damage from total warfare and atrocities such as the Holocaust led to a call for international efforts to protect human rights and prevent future wars.

- 8.6a Worldwide economic depression, militant nationalism, the rise of totalitarian rule, and the unsuccessful efforts of the League of Nations to preserve peace contributed to the outbreak of war in Europe and Asia.
- 8.6b From 1939 to 1941, the United States government tried to maintain neutrality while providing aid to Britain but was drawn into the war by the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. The United States fought a war on multiple fronts. At home, the economy was converted to war production, and essential resources were rationed to ensure adequate supplies for military use.
- 8.6c The nature and consequences of warfare during World War II transformed the United States and the global community. The damage from total warfare and human atrocities, including the Holocaust, led to a call for an international organization to prevent future wars and the protection of human rights.

8.7 Foreign Policy

The period after World War II has been characterized by an ideological and political struggle, first between the United States and communism during the Cold War, then between the United States and forces of instability in the Middle East. Increased economic interdependence and competition, as well as environmental concerns, are challenges faced by the United States.

- 8.7a The Cold War was an ongoing struggle between the two nuclear superpowers, the United States and the Soviet Union. The Cold War shaped the reconstruction of national boundaries and political alliances across the globe.
- 8.7b The United States based its military and diplomatic policies from 1945 to 1990 on a policy of containment of communism.
- 8.7c Following the end of the Cold War, the United States sought to define a new role in global affairs, but the legacies of Cold War actions continue to affect United States foreign policy today.
- 8.7d Terrorist groups not representing any nation entered and reshaped global military and political alliances and conflicts. American foreign and domestic policies responded to terrorism in a variety of ways.
- 8.7e Increased globalization has led to increased economic interdependence and competition.

8.8 Demographic Change

After World War II, the population of the United States rose sharply as a result of both natural increases and immigration. Population movements have resulted in changes to the American landscape and shifting political power. An aging population is affecting the economy and straining public resources.

- 8.8a After World War II, the United States experienced various shifts in population and demographics that resulted in social, political, and economic consequences.
- 8.8b The postwar United States experienced increasing immigration, debates over immigration policy, and an increase in cultural diversity.

- 8.8c Pollution, population growth, the consumption of natural resources, clearing of land for human sustenance, and large-scale industrialization have put added stress on the global environment.

8.9 Domestic Politics and Reform

The civil rights movement and the Great Society were attempts by people and the government to address major social, legal, economic, and environmental problems. Subsequent economic recession called for a new economic program.

- 8.9a The civil rights movement began in the postwar era in response to long-standing inequalities in American society, and eventually brought about equality under the law, but slower progress on economic improvements.
- 8.9b The civil rights movement prompted renewed efforts for equality by women and other groups.
- 8.9c The Great Society programs of President Lyndon Johnson strengthened efforts aimed at reducing poverty and providing health care for the elderly, but the Vietnam War drained resources and divided society.
- 8.9d Economic recession during the 1970s and concerns about the growth and size of the federal government encouraged fiscal conservatives to push for changes in regulation and policy.
- 8.9e Constitutional issues involving the violation of civil liberties and the role of the federal government are a source of debate in American society.

S.S. Student Learning Objectives

- Students will compare and contrast the differences between Reconstruction under Lincoln's plan, Johnson's plan, and congressional (Radical) Reconstruction.
- Students will examine the Reconstruction amendments (13th, 14th, and 15th) in terms of the rights and protections provided to African Americans.
- Students will examine the Freedmen's Bureau's purpose, successes, and the extent of its success.
- Students will examine the effects of the sharecropping system on African Americans.
- Students will examine the reasons for the migration of African Americans to the North.
- Students will examine the rise of African Americans in government.
- Students will explore methods used by Southern state governments to affect the lives of African Americans, including the passage of Black Codes, poll taxes, and Jim Crow laws.
- Students will explore the responses of some Southerners to the increased rights of African Americans, noting the development of organizations such as the Ku Klux Klan and White Leagues.
- Students will examine the ways in which the federal government failed to follow up on its promises to freed African Americans.
- Students will examine the effects of the Plessy v. Ferguson ruling.
- Students will identify groups of people who moved into urban areas, and examine where they came from and the reasons for their migration into the cities. Students will explore the immigrant experience at Ellis Island.

- Students will compare and contrast immigrant experiences in locations such as ethnic neighborhoods in cities, rural settlements in the Midwest, Chinese communities in the Far West, and Mexican communities in the Southwest. Students will examine the population growth of New York City and other New York cities and the technologies and industries which encouraged this growth.
- Students will examine the living conditions in urban areas with a focus on increasing population density and the effects that this growth had on the social, cultural, and economic lives of people. Students will examine nativism and anti-immigration policies, including the Chinese Exclusion Act, the Gentlemen's Agreement, and immigration legislation of the 1920s.
- Students will explore the growth and effects of child labor and sweatshops.

- Students will investigate reformers and muckrakers such as Jane Addams, Florence Kelley, W. E. B. du Bois, Marcus Garvey, Ida Tarbell, Eugene V. Debs, Jacob Riis, Booker T. Washington, and Upton Sinclair. Student investigations should include the key issues in the individual's work and the actions that individual took or recommended to address those issues.
- Students will explore leaders and activities of the temperance and women's suffrage movements.
- Students will investigate the Triangle Shirtwaist Fire and the legislative response.
- Students will examine state and federal government responses to reform efforts, including the passage of the 17th amendment, child labor and minimum wage laws, antitrust legislation, and food and drug regulations.
- Students will examine the effects of the transcontinental railroad on the movement toward westward expansion.
- Students will examine examples of Native American resistance to the western encroachment, including the Sioux Wars and the flight and surrender of Chief Joseph and the Nez Perce.
- Students will examine United States and New York State policies toward Native Americans, such as the displacement of Native Americans from traditional lands, creation of reservations, efforts to assimilate Native Americans through the creation of boarding schools, the Dawes Act, and the Indian Reorganization Act and the Native Americans' various responses to these policies. Students will examine examples of yellow journalism that contributed to United States entry into the Spanish-American War, including the portrayal of the sinking of the USS Maine.
- Students will explain how the events and outcomes of the Spanish-American War contributed to the shift to imperialism in United States foreign policy. Students will assess the events surrounding the annexation of Hawaii.
- Students will examine the purpose and effects of the Open Door Policy. Students will evaluate the United States actions taken under the Roosevelt Corollary and their effects on relationships between the United States and Latin American nations, including the building of the Panama Canal.
- Students will examine an overview of the causes of World War I, focusing on the factors leading to United States entry into the war.
- Students will examine examples of war propaganda and its effects on support for United States involvement in the war.

- Students will examine the restrictions placed on citizens after United States entry into the war, including the Espionage Act (1917) and the Sedition Act (1918).
- Students will examine the effects of the changes in military technologies used during World War I, including trench warfare, chemical weapons, machine guns, and aircraft. Students will examine Wilson's Fourteen Points and investigate reasons why the United States Senate refused to support the Treaty of Versailles, focusing on opposition to the League of Nations. Students will investigate the efforts of women suffragists and explain the historical significance of the 19th amendment.
- Students will examine the reasons for and effects of prohibition on American society.
- Students will examine examples of World War I and postwar race relations, such as the East St. Louis riots, the Silent March, and the Tulsa riots.
- Students will explore the changes in American culture after World War I, including an examination of the Harlem Renaissance and other changes in New York City.
- Students will examine how the economic practices of the 1920s contributed to the coming of the Great Depression. Students will identify key programs adopted under the New Deal, including the creation of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the adoption of the Social Security Act.
- Students will examine how the worldwide economic depression and militant nationalism resulted in the rise of totalitarian rule. Students will examine American involvement in World War II, including the American strategy in the Pacific and the invasion of Normandy on D-Day.
- Students will examine the role of the Tuskegee Airmen within the segregated military during World War II.
- Students will investigate the effects of the war on the American economy and day-to-day life.
- Students will examine the internment of Japanese Americans in light of perceived national security concerns versus constitutional rights, including the decision in Korematsu v. United States (1944).
- Student will examine the role of New Yorkers in World War II, focusing on local institutions, such as the Fort Ontario Refugee Center or the Brooklyn Navy Yard.
- Students will examine the role of air power by the allies, including the use of the atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.
- Students will investigate the Holocaust and explain the historical significance of the Nuremberg trials.
- Students will examine the structure and work of the United Nations.
- Students will locate on a map the nations that were aligned with the United States, those aligned with the Soviet Union, and the non-aligned nations.
- Students will examine the term nuclear superpower and the threat of nuclear weapons as a cause and as an effect of the arms race between the United States and the Soviet Union. Students will examine the policy of containment and its application in the postwar period, including the Marshall Plan, the Korean War, the Cuban missile crisis, and the Vietnam War. Students will examine the changing relationships between the United States and foreign countries such as: China beginning in 1950; Afghanistan beginning in the 1980s; Russia beginning in 1990; Middle East (Israel, Palestine, Iran, Kuwait, Iraq); Countries in the Western Hemisphere, focusing on NAFTA, Cuba and Mexico; European Union countries Students will examine the terrorist attack of September 11, 2001, its effects on national security and the United States responses to it, including the USA Patriot Act, the formation of the Department of Homeland Security, the War on Terror, and military attacks on suspected terrorist locations. Students will examine the increased economic interdependence in terms of globalization and its impact on the United States and New York State economy, including the workforce.

- Students will examine the roles of multinational corporations and their influence on the world economy.
- Students will explore the short-term and long-term effects of the baby boom generation on the economy, including increases in the construction of homes and schools and increased demands on both Social Security and health care.
- Students will examine the effects of suburbanization, including urban decay, suburban growth, and the diminished availability of farmland both nationally and within New York State.
- Students will examine the population shift from the Midwest and northern industrial states to the Sun Belt, including its effect on political power. Students will examine migration and immigration trends in New York State and New York City such as the increase in Spanish-speaking, South Asian, East Asian, Middle Eastern, and African populations and the contributions of these groups.
- Students will examine the effects of immigration legislation and policy, including recent debates over immigration policy. Students will explore the effects of pollution, industrialization, and population growth on the environment, including urban areas (Love Canal), plant and animal life (Adirondack Park) and energy sources (Three Mile Island).
- Students will compare and contrast the strategies used by civil rights activists, such as Thurgood Marshall, Rosa Parks, Martin Luther King, Jr., and Malcolm X.
- Students will explain the significance of key civil rights victories, including President Truman's desegregation of the military, Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka (1954), the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and the Voting Rights Act of 1965.
- Students will examine the extent to which the economic situation of African Americans improved as a result of the civil rights movement. Students will examine struggles for equality and factors that enabled or limited success on behalf of women, farm workers, Native Americans, the disabled, and the LGBT community.
- Students will examine judicial actions taken to protect individual rights, such as Miranda v. Arizona (1966) and Tinker v. Des Moines School District (1969). Students will explain the difference between Medicare and Medicaid.
- Students will examine the connection between the Vietnam War, especially the draft, and the growth of a counterculture and peace movement. Students will examine President Ronald Reagan's and President George H. W. Bush's cuts to social programs and taxes in an attempt to stimulate the economy. Students will examine state and federal responses to gun violence, cyberbullying, and electronic surveillance.
